Love Beer Work Here

We've got a clear ambition at Molson Coors Brewing Company UK (Ltd): to become one of the world's top four brewers. And to do that we need to deliver perfect beverages to our customers. Which is where you come in.

As a Technical Manager (Brewing and Distilling Malt) in our the Malting Management team, you'll provide malting expertise to the site and support our brewing network to maximise malt performance, coach team members on quality processes, and act as the key link with our customers (internal and external).

You'll also work alongside our Strategic Sourcing team to help manage our supplier base, giving you the opportunity to deliver results in a key customer facing role, through good relationship management.

What new ingredient could make our beers even more popular? You!

When you join us as a Technical Manager (Brewing and Distilling Malt) you will:

- Drive improvements in operations through process optimisation benchmarking, work with cross-functional teams on new process and plant initiatives to drive results and act as the technical expert to operational teams
- Control the end to end quality of materials on the site, from customer requirements through to process control techniques to raw materials management
- Coordinate and manage trials, reviewing the outcomes with key teams
- Provide technical support for customers
- Manage the relationships with barley suppliers in conjunction with our Strategic Sourcing team

At Molson Coors Brewing Company, our vision is simple – we seek to delight the world's beer drinkers while securing our future as a top-tier global brewer.

We're the UK's second largest brewer and the European subsidiary of Molson Coors – the global family brewer. We boast Europe's largest brewery and brew some 7 million barrels of beer a year. Available in over 30 countries, our brands include Carling, Grolsch, Coors Light, Worthington's and White Shield, all of which are brewed by our exceptional people in locations throughout the UK.

And we innovate in all that we do. Right now we've our sights set on becoming one of the 4 most profitable brewers in the world and are using our brand and people-power to get us there. We're committed to refining our established drinks and developing exciting new ones, creating brands that people love and giving talented, ambitious people the opportunity to prove what they can do in a competitive and exciting marketplace where the challenges – and rewards – come thick and fast.

For the position of Technical Manager (Brewing and Distilling Malt) we are looking for someone with practical malting or brewing management experience, who ideally has worked in Lean Manufacturing, TPM, Six Sigma, or World Class Manufacturing environments. You'll also need customer facing experience, good commercial awareness and strong communication and IT skills.

If that sounds great to you...
